Statistical Sentencing Data

Your Honor:

On November 28, 2017, the above noted defendant pled guilty to a violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1030(b), and Judgment and Sentencing were scheduled for April 24, 2018. At that hearing, Your Honor requested statistical information from the United States Sentencing Commission (USSC), regarding the length of sentences that have been imposed nationally for similar crimes.

Pursuant to the Court's request, the undersigned contacted the United States Sentencing Commission (USSC) to request data about prior sentences imposed in similar cases. According to Christine Kitchens, the USSC is only able to provide data regarding an offense of conviction or data from cases that share a specific offense characteristic.

In this case, the USSC provided a table that includes data for defendants convicted of 18 U.S.C. § 1030(b) where the specific offense characteristic for obtaining personal information (USSC § 2B1.1(b)(17) was applied. In order to increase the small sample size, the USSC provided data from 2010 to 2017. During this time frame, there were 20 cases that matched the exact criteria and the results are shown in the first column. In order to provide more information, the USSC also provided data for any defendant convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 1030. This data is reflected in column two. Attached is the table received from the USSC.

² Calculations of the average include sentences of probation as zero months and any term of confinement as described in USSG §5C1.1. Sentences and guideline minimums of 470 months or longer (including life) were included in the calculation as 470 months. The Commission does not report average sentence information for categories with fewer than three cases.
